

Kudos to congressman

O.C. citizens and California's 48th Congressional District owe a deep debt of gratitude to Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Huntington

Rohrabacher

Beach, for his strong conservative representation. Rohrabacher has served the causes of freedom in Washington since 1989.

I was first amused, but then dismayed, upon learning of the debacle regarding climate change created by President Barack Obama's Organization for Action at the Huntington Beach Pier and at the congressman's Huntington Beach office recently ["Rohrabacher given climate 'award,'" News, Aug. 4].

What an insult to award this patriot a "unicorn" trophy for his stand, which is contrary to this group's global-warming beliefs. The congressman says that global-warming hysteria is based on fraud that supports aspirations of a global government.

I, along with many credible scientists, agree with the congressman. Moreover, it is time for the Register to reexamine its leanings that seem to support global warming, as suggested by letter-writer Larry Hamlin ["The ups and downs of climate sensitivity," Letters, Aug. 15].

Our congressman, as vice chair of the House Committee on Science, Space and Technology, continues to champion the truth in this and many other controversial causes, bravely contesting the liberal factions and some individuals of his own party, and obviously some constituents right here in his beloved Surf City. There is a fast-growing body of scientifically generated conclusions based upon real data and not inaccurate government controlled predictive models that have consistently overestimated temperatures. The scientifically validated analyses show temperatures have not risen in 15 years, with a very likely reversal toward a cooling period being imminent.

Congressman Rohrabacher deserves a real award for his persistent efforts toward sorting out this climate controversy, as well as his stance on so many similar issues that challenge basic freedoms.
